This year’s European Navigation Conference, ENC 2011, to be held in London, will cover advances in all aspects of location and navigation technology and their applications.

Sessions will be organised into both plenary and parallel means which will cover navigation system infrastructure and policy, technical and commercial aspects of varied applications, and safety and security issues.

Authors are invited to submit a brief outline of their presentation, not exceeding 300 words. Please note the closing date for this call for papers is 9th May 2011.

It is appreciated that work on a project to be presented may not be complete on submission. These outlines will be considered by a Papers’ Committee drawn from all EUGIN Institutes. Chosen authors will be informed in June 2011 and the programme and registration form will be available that month, too.

The European Navigation Conference 2011 website (www.enc2011.org) has been launched together with dedicated RSS, Facebook and Twitter Feeds.

Delegates may pre-register for ENC 2011 by clicking on the registration button on the home page of the ENC 2011 website: www.enc2011.org
