Reduced Vertical Separation Minima (RVSM) was due to be introduced to the airspace of Afghanistan, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Mongolia, the Russian Federation, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan on 17\textsuperscript{th} November 2011. It is notable, according to IFALPA, that while the majority of these States will be using Flight Level (feet) based altimetry, Mongolia has opted for a metric application.

Accordingly, IFALPA has published two Briefing Leaflets using data obtained from the affected States. The PDFs are found relative to this text.
